Qatar's eight World Cup stadiums

Lusail Iconic Stadium (80,000 capacity)

Qatar's biggest stadium will host the final on December 18 as well as, amongst other matches, the first semifinal. Built in Lusail, a planned city for a population of 200,000 people situated 15km north of central Doha, there are plans for the stadium to be transformed into a community hub after the World Cup, with most of its seats being removed and donated elsewhere.

Al-Bayt Stadium

(60,000 capacity)

The venue for the opening game between Qatar and Ecuador on November 20, as well as the group-stage showdown between Spain and Germany and the second semifinal. It is constructed in the form of a Bedouin tent, although there are plans for the upper tier to be removed after the competition. Situated on Qatar's northeast coast, around 35km from Doha, it is therefore beyond the reach of the capital's metro system, making it one of the harder venues to access for supporters.

Education City Stadium

(40,000 capacity) Situated among university campuses in Al-Rayyan, just to the west of Doha itself, and reachable by metro, the stadium will notably host one of the quarterfinals. Its capacity will be reduced by half after the tournament with plans for the seats to be donated to developing

(40,000 capacity)

The home of one of Qatar's most successful clubs, Al-Rayyan, the stadium has been built on the site of the old venue of the same name and is one metro stop beyond the nearby Education City. Located where the city meets the desert, its capacity will also be reduced by half after
